

starting the packing

Ok. here I am finally starting the packing.. (well it is more "piling"..) .. for my next trip to Nepal. Christmas under Buddhas eyes..why not. I will pay the bills and take the money to the "Godchildren's" families... If we have a chance to go into the village I will also get a pile of secondhand shoes there.. good stuff from friends of mine.. I just can't leave them here, knowing how much these things are appreciated in the village. The soccer and tiny basketballs from the Air Cracks.. will also find a home.. in one of the three schools I have designated to be receivers :) Village school in Hill, Kailash Bodi in KTM and the Marshyangdi School which Maya attends will receive a couple of them. :)

Looking mega forward to the way-too-short- trip to Nepal.

I will let you know what's happening.. once it is happening :)